

New Hire Paperwork

There are several important forms for the new employee to fill out. Among them should be the following:

EEO Self-Identification Form

The Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) self-identification form serves to fulfill the governmental recordkeeping and reporting requirements for the administration of civil rights laws and regulations. This form is used to collect confidential gender and racial/ethnic information.

Veterans Status Form

The Veterans Status form allows the state to comply with the reporting requirements of the Vietnam Era Veterans' Readjustment Assistant Act as well as other governmental reports.

Both of these forms are voluntary and all information collected by these forms is kept strictly confidential.
